Survey on the Application of the Orphan Works Directive

ABOUT THIS SURVEY

This survey is part of the European Commission’s “Study on the application of the Orphan Works Directive (2012/28/EU)”, which is being carried out by Milieu Consulting SRL.

The Orphan Works Directive 2012/28/EU (OWD or Directive) was created to improve legal certainty across the EU for the digitisation and dissemination of orphan works, particularly in the context of large-scale EU digitisation projects. It was intended to fill the gap between the public-interest mission of cultural heritage institutions (e.g. publicly accessible libraries, educational establishments and museums, archives, film and audio heritage institutions and public-service broadcasting organisations) to share their works with the general public, and the practically impossible challenge of locating all rightholders to get their prior ‘green light’ to use their works.

The approach in the OWD is based on the instrument of mutual recognition of orphan work status, determined after a diligent search in the EU Member State or European Economic Area (EEA) country where the work was first published. Mutual recognition means that once a work is considered orphan in one Member State, it is considered orphan in all of them. The diligent search for rightholders must be conducted prior to the usage of works and in good faith, obliging the beneficiaries to consult the appropriate sources for the category of works at stake. In contrast to the approach taken by the OWD, the newly adopted Directive (EU) 2019/790 on copyright and related rights in the Digital Single Market opted for a license-based solution to support the mass digitisation and dissemination of out-of-commerce works. Contrary to orphan works, these are works whose rightholders (known or unknown) no longer actively exploit their rights, as for some reason they have decided not to continue with their commercial exploitation.

This targeted survey aims to gather information and the views of stakeholders to conduct a qualitative assessment of the implementation of the OWD provisions and an evaluation of the overall efficiency and effectiveness of the OWD as an instrument to promote the digitisation and dissemination of orphan works. The results of this survey will help to provide assessment and justification for possible policy options to improve the application and effects of the OWD.

To this end the survey specifically considers the ‘Effectiveness’ (the extent to which the objective of mass digitisation and dissemination of orphan works has been achieved), as well as ‘Coherence’ and ‘Alternative solutions’ (how the Directive interacts with other relevant areas of EU copyright law and policy and how the system could be improved).
Responding to the survey
As this survey covers many different aspects of the Directive and targets different types of stakeholders, the questionnaire is somewhat lengthy. We estimate that the completion of the survey should not take longer than 30 minutes. Only questions marked with an asterisk are mandatory. In case of non-mandatory questions, you only need to answer those questions for which you feel you have the expertise or experience to enable an informed answer.

It is also important that answers are substantiated to the extent possible. The open text fields provide the possibility to explain answers, and also to provide concrete evidence to support the answers. Wherever possible, we ask you to identify and describe real-life examples that can concretely illustrate the response. You can provide links and/or upload documents to support these examples.

You may interrupt your session at any time and continue answering at a later stage. If you do so, please remember to save the link to your answers as this is the only way to access them. Once you have submitted your answers online, you will be able to download a copy of the completed questionnaire.

We kindly ask you to fill in the questionnaire by 25 September 2020.

Name
IS THE DIRECTIVE EFFECTIVE?

Assessing the effectiveness of the OWD means analysing the extent to which its objectives have been met and identifying any significant factors that may have contributed to or inhibited progress towards meeting those objectives.

Overall effectiveness of the OWD

The OWD sets out common rules for the use of orphan works by the cultural heritage institutions. Orphan works are works protected by copyright or related rights for which either no rightholder is identified or even if identified, the rightholder is not located. The work in question needs to be published, and the first publication must take place on the territory of an EU Member State or an EEA country. As beneficiaries are not possible to obtain rightholders’ consent to the use of their works, the Directive enables them to use such works after performing a diligent search of rightholders.

This section aims at analysing the extent to which the main objective of the Directive – promotion of the digitisation and dissemination of orphan works – has been met.

* In your experience, has there been improvement in the digitisation and dissemination of orphan works since 2014?
  - Yes
  - No
  - I do not know

* To what extent can this be attributed to the OWD?
  - This can be significantly attributed to the OWD
  - This can be partly attributed to the OWD
  - This cannot be attributed to the OWD
  - I do not know
Research on orphan works is often complicated and require an amount of energy and time by trained staff that most Cultural Heritage Institutions don’t have. The Directive could not solve that problem and did not offer alternatives.

Scope of the OWD

The scope of the OWD is limited both to the types of institutions that can benefit from certain uses made of orphan works as well as to types of works that could be considered as orphan. Article 10(1) of the OWD suggests that this could be reviewed and possibly expanded to include additional beneficiaries such as publishers and additional types of works and/or materials. This section aims at assessing if the scope of the Directive is sufficiently broad.

• The provisions of the Directive apply to publicly accessible libraries, educational establishments and museums, as well as archives, film or audio heritage institutions and public-service broadcasting organisations established in the Member States.

In your opinion, should the OWD be applicable to other types of institutions?

- Yes
- No
- I do not know

Please explain your answer(s), based on your experience and including examples (where possible).

Publishers in particular should not be allowed to file orphan works because their publishing methods often take visual authors’ metadata off from their visual works, especially when they are embedded in books or magazines. That makes it more likely to lose trace of the visual author and declare the work as orphan.

• The OWD applies to the following types of works and/or materials: books, journals, newspapers, magazines, other writings, cinematographic, audiovisual works, phonograms and embedded works.

In your opinion, should the OWD be applicable to other types of works and/or materials?

- Yes
- No
- I do not know

Please explain your answer(s), based on your experience and including examples (where possible).

As they are often easily and quickly stripped of their metadata, visual works are especially vulnerable to go unrecognized and be labelled as orphan. No more visual work sub-categories should be added to the list currently falling within the scope of OWD.
The OWD also applies to embedded / incorporated works, which are visual works such as fine art, photography, illustration, design, architecture, sketches etc. that are contained in books, journals, newspapers and magazines or other works. Embedded works may not be disregarded and must undergo a separate diligent search.

Do you agree with this concept of embedded / incorporated works under the OWD?
- Yes, fully
- Yes, partially
- No
- I do not know

Please explain your answer, based on your experience and including examples (where possible).

Embedded works should be undetachable from the main works they are embedded in, or they would risk being used as single works without protection.

Permitted uses of orphan works

The OWD permits the use of orphan works for public-interest missions, such as, for the purposes of digitisation, dissemination to the public, indexing, cataloguing, preservation or restoration. It does not for instance allow for 'non-online' uses of works, such as public performance or broadcasting of dramatic and cinematographic works. Moreover, commercial use of orphan works is excluded.

This section thus aims at understanding if the range of permitted uses of orphan works in the OWD is sufficient.

- The OWD restricts the use of orphan works to digitisation, dissemination, indexing, cataloguing, preservation or restoration.

In your opinion, is the range of permitted uses of orphan works in the OWD sufficient?
- Yes
- No, the range of permitted uses is too broad
- No, the range of permitted uses is too narrow
- I do not know

Please explain your answer, based on your experience and including examples (where possible).

The uses currently permitted cover sufficiently the spectrum of CHIs' activities.

Effectiveness of the diligent search

The OWD requires that a diligent search for rightholders is to be carried out in good faith with respect to each work by consulting the appropriate sources. Only after a beneficiary organisation performs such a diligent search can a work and/or a material be declared to be orphan and thus be used according to the terms of the Directive.
Have you ever performed a diligent search for rightholder(s) of a work based on the OWD?

- Yes
- No
- Not applicable

For the diligent search procedure, Member States, in consultation with stakeholders, need to determine the sources which shall be reviewed for each category of works and/or materials. Such list or lists of sources must include at least those sources listed in the Annex to the Directive.

Recent studies and reports have highlighted some difficulties linked to the list(s) of sources and/or accessibility of the sources that need to be consulted to perform a diligent search. Based on your experience how would you assess the following?

Effectiveness of putting an end to the orphan work status

Article 5 of the Directive provides that a rightholder may end the orphan work status at any time. The reappearance of the rightholder in turn means that the work is no longer orphaned and that a fair compensation has to be paid to the reappeared rightholder.

* In your experience, how often do rightholders put an end to the orphan works status of their works and/or materials?
  - Often (in roughly 60% to 100% of cases of orphan works)
  - Sometimes (in roughly 20% to 60% of cases of orphan works)
  - Rarely (in less than 20% of cases of orphan works)
  - Never
  - I do not know

* In cases where orphan works are claimed by rightholders, how frequently do they claim compensation?
  - Always
  - Almost always (in roughly 80% of cases of orphan works)
  - Often (in roughly 60% to 100% of cases of orphan works)
  - Sometimes (in roughly 20% to 60% of cases of orphan works)
  - Rarely (in less than 20% of cases of orphan works)
  - Never
  - I do not know

* In your opinion, is it easy to end an orphan works status?
  - Yes
  - No
  - I do not know

* To what extent can this be attributed to the OWD?
  - This can be significantly attributed to the OWD
  - This can be partly attributed to the OWD
  - This cannot be attributed to the OWD
  - I do not know

Please explain your answers based on your experience, including examples (where possible), and information supporting the contribution of the OWD to the possibility of putting an end to the orphan work status.

Do you think that the Directive provides sufficient legal clarity regarding the level of compensation for the rightholder(s)?

- Yes, fully
- Yes, partially
- No
- I do not know

Please explain your answer, based on your experience and including examples (where possible).

The concept of Orphan works itself is to avoid rightsholders’ permissions and remuneration.

Do you have any suggestions to improve the procedure to end the orphan work status?

Effectiveness of the mutual recognition system

In Article 4, the OWD provides for a system of a mutual recognition of orphan work status throughout the EU/EEA. This means that a work which has been considered an orphan work in one EU Member State and/or EEA country is considered an orphan work in all such countries and may be used accordingly.

In your opinion, has the use of orphan works from different countries increased across the EU/EEA?

- Yes
- No
- I do not know

Please explain your answer based on your experience, including examples (where possible), and information supporting the contribution of the mutual recognition of orphan work status to the usage of orphan works.

Do you have any suggestions to improve the mutual recognition of orphan work status?

Effectiveness of the EUIPO database

Under Article 3(6) of the OWD, the European Union Intellectual Property Office (EUIPO) was made responsible for the establishment and management of a single publicly accessible online database on orphan works. The EUIPO Orphan Works Database provides information on works contained in the collection of beneficiaries in EU Member States and EEA countries. However, this is not the only database that compiles orphan works. Apart from the discontinued ARROW database, several countries have set up national databases of orphan works.

• Does your organisation have any experience in using the EUIPO Orphan Works Database?
  ○ Yes
  ○ No
  ○ Not applicable

• In your experience, is the information provided by the EUIPO database effective in facilitating the inclusion of orphan works in large-scale digitisation and dissemination projects?
  ○ Yes, fully
  ○ Yes, partially
  ○ No
  ○ I do not know

Please explain your answer, based on your experience and including examples (where possible).

• Do you think the EUIPO database is sufficiently compatible and interoperable with other orphan works databases?

Coherence and alternatives to the approach in the OWD

This last part of the survey aims at assessing how well the OWD works in conjunction with other relevant EU copyright laws and policies, in particular the recently and related rights in the Digital Single Market (Copyright Directive), which still needs to be transposed into national legal system.

Moreover, this part aims to understand if there are alternative approaches that could more effectively enable mass digitisation and dissemination of orphan works, such as the extended collective licensing (ECL) mechanisms proposed for out-of-commerce works by the newly adopted Copyright Directive.

In your opinion, is the OWD consistent with and supportive of the following EU copyright rules or do you see gaps, overlaps or inconsistencies?

In particular, the ability for representative collective management organisations (CMO) to issue licenses for the use of out-of-commerce works by cultural heritage institutions. In the previous question, you stated that the OWD has gaps, overlaps or inconsistencies with rules on anonymous or pseudonymous works.

What are the gaps, overlaps or inconsistencies and how do they impact the achievement of the OWD’s objectives on the one hand and the achievement of the objectives of the rules on anonymous or pseudonymous works on the other hand? Do gaps, overlaps or inconsistencies result in delays, uncertainties and/or additional administrative burden? What would be your suggestion to resolve these problems? Please elaborate and provide practical examples to justify your answer.

Diligent search tends to confuse works published under anonymity as orphan works. This may lead to the unauthorized use of a protected work until the rightsholder doesn’t notice the mistake.

In the previous question, you stated that the OWD is consistent with and/or supportive of rules on out-of-commerce works.

What synergies are in place between the OWD and the rules on out-of-commerce works? Are there coordination mechanisms in place and do they work in practice?

Please elaborate and provide practical examples to justify your answer.

Some of these problems could be addressed by using rules on out-of-commerce works to fill the gaps in OWD application.

In the previous question, you stated that the OWD is consistent with and/or supportive of the Member States’ ability to introduce extended collective licensing (ECL) schemes.

What synergies are in place between the OWD and extended collective licensing (ECL) schemes? Are there coordination mechanisms in place and do they work in practice?

Please elaborate and provide practical examples to justify your answer.

A well implemented Extended Collective Licensing system also in the field of orphan works would address many of the practical issues of OWD.

In the previous question, you stated that the OWD is consistent with and/or supportive of rules on works in the public domain.

What synergies are in place between the OWD and the rules on works in the public domain? Are there coordination mechanisms in place and do they work in practice?

Please elaborate and provide practical examples to justify your answer.

Public domain works don’t need diligent search.

In the previous question, you stated that the OWD is consistent with and/or supportive of the ability of beneficiaries to make copies of any works in their collection for the purpose of preserving such work.

What synergies are in place between the OWD and the ability of beneficiaries to make copies of works? Are there coordination mechanisms in place and do they work in practice?

Please elaborate and provide practical examples to justify your answer.

- The new Copyright Directive provides for an extended collective licensing (ECL) mechanism, which allows for collective agreements between a representative collective management organisation (CMO) and a user to be effective also in relation to authors who are not members of the organisation, with a fall-back option in case there is no sufficiently representative CMO.

In your view, should the approach in the Copyright Directive for out-of-commerce works be extended to also cover orphan works?

- Yes
- No
- I do not know

To what extent and how should the system for out-of-commerce works be applicable to orphan works?

750 character(s) maximum

The ECL provisions contained in art 12 DSM directive 2019/790 should be implemented by all EU Member States to maximise legal certainty for users and benefit for all artists and the same approach could be used to cover also orphan works. Both could be included in the same agreement thus maximizing clarity and cutting paper work for Cultural Heritage Institutions.

* What other system(s), in your view, is to be considered for mass digitisation and dissemination of orphan works? Please mark all that apply.

None of the above can not be selected together with other options.

- Licensing scheme
- Extended collective licensing (ECL)
- Public domain exception
- Other
- None of the above
- I do not know

Are any of the above listed systems in place in your country? If so, please explain which ones and whether they also cover orphan works.

What would you say are the main advantages of using an alternative system such as extended collective licensing (ECL) as oppose to the orphan works system in the OWD? Please explain the advantages and disadvantages of such alternative system, based on your experience and including examples (where possible).

750 character(s) maximum

Extended Collective Licenses are simple, give CHIs maximum legal certainty, ensure some income to more artists and are flexible. They are a win-win solution for both rightsholders and users. It also frees up resources from CHIs because they would not need to spend energy on time-consuming diligent searches.

Please let us know if you have any final remarks or suggestions on how to improve the functioning of the OWD.
